SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

James Tyler, Prudential Committee. The Summer Term was taught by Miss M. E. Smith, who had also taught the two preceding terms, we believe to the entire satisfaction of all the District.

It is sufficient to say that she possesses most of the qualifications of a common school teacher in a high degree. It is perhaps unfortunate for the cause of education that she has renounced the business of teaching, and by matrimony graduated to a higher and more responsible position.

In this District there is a beautiful school house; well warmed and ventilated, and furnished with blackboards and outline maps, so that the house is not only healthy, but attractive, as every school house ought to be. There are some very brilliant and promising intellects among the scholars of this District, and everything considered, it is one of the most interesting schools your Committee have visited for many years.

The Winter Term was taught by Miss Lizzie Yeaton—a graduate of New London Academy. This was her first effort in a common school, and it was successful. She is amiable in disposition, modest in her deportment, apt to teach, mild, but firm in her government, and gave general satisfaction.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

George Miner, Prudential Committee. The school house in this District is good, and ought to be furnished with outline maps. It is a difficult and laborious school to teach; not because the scholars are turbulent and unsubmissive, but because the majority of them are of an age the most restless and uneasy, and because there are so many classes that the teacher can hardly do justice to any of them. It would be greatly to the advantage of this school if it could be graded. The Summer Term was taught by Miss Marcia A. May. For some reason there was an impression made on the minds of some in the District, before she commenced, that she would not be successful. She bore a very good examination, and commenced the school with an evident determination to govern it well. She labored hard, but it was soon apparent that she had neither the good will of the scholars or the confidence of the parents. How the previous impression had to do with this I cannot say. I think, however, that persons ought not to form themselves—much less report to others—unfavorable impressions of teachers before they have been proved. Some complaint having been made to the Committee against her government, she chose to resign rather than suffer the unpleasant feelings connected with a trial.

The Winter Term was taught by Mr. E. A. Howard, a young man twenty-eight years old, and who had taught several years. He came very highly recommended, and was paid $25 a month and board. He succeeded very well the first few weeks, until a case of discipline occurred, in which a little girl ten years of age refused to obey the orders of the school. The teacher very unwisely took hold of her ear, instead of her arm, as he should have done, led her into the floor, and by pinching and pulling her ear tried to make her submit to his requirements. The child was obstinate, and some of the scholars very improperly advised her not to yield, and the effort was unsuccessful. The teacher saw his error, immediately went to the parents and friends of the child, and stating the facts, asked their pardon. The friends were satisfied; they believed the punishment improper and too severe, but as it was the impulse of the moment, and the error admitted, and the "amende honorable" made, they could ask no more. The child was sent to school, required to confess her fault and submit to the orders of the school.

This was right, and the matter should have ended here. But the unfavorable impression made against the teacher by this occurrence was not fully removed and the school was not so successfully conducted as before. There is a serious fault in the parents of this District, as may be seen by the numerous cases of tardiness reported.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

T. J. Hardy, Prudential Committee. This school was taught by Miss G. A. Shackford both terms. She gave very general satisfaction, and there was a marked improvement in the scholars. She failed, however, to keep her register correctly. The school house in this District is old and gloomy, and a new one ought soon to take its place.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

C. Kendall, Prudential Committee. Teacher, Miss Lizzie M. Doton. The school was well taught, and the recitations all good; especially was this true of the recitations in arithmetic. The government was all that could be desired.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

John D. Carley, Prudential Committee. Miss Lizzie D. Burleigh, teacher. The school was well conducted and gave general satisfaction.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

John B. Wilson, Prudential Committee. The Summer Term was taught by Miss Mary E. Pressey, and the Winter Term by Miss Sarah L. Davis. The scholars in this District certainly deserve great credit for learning so well under so many discouraging circumstances. There is not a school in town so destitute of school conveniences as this. Besides the misfortune of having an old cold kitchen for a school room, there is neither blackboard, maps, or globe, and yet we must say that this school is in advance of many whose circumstances are more favorable. If these scholars could have the benefit of a comfortable school room, and proper school furniture, it is believed they might rank among the first. So mote it be.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

John Milton, Prudential Committee. There are two departments of this school. In the summer it was taught by the Misses Arabel and Malvina Hadley—both very competent instructors—and under their tuition the scholars made good improvement.

The Winter Term was taught by Miss Susie B. Smart and Miss Arabel Hadley. For reasons that ought not to have existed, and which we hope will not exist again, the advanced department failed to meet the reasonable expectations of the School Committee. The teacher was one intellectually well qualified to keep the school; of an excellent spirit and willing to labor, but failed, for some cause, to secure the respect of her scholars. This, united with outside pressure, made the school of little profit. Miss Smart reports 143 tardy marks, and 68 cases of dismissal.

Miss Hadley succeeded very well, having the esteem of scholars and more of parental cooperation in her work than Miss Smart. This school very much needs a globe and outline maps.

DISTRICT NO. 8.

Aaron Aldrich, Prudential Committee. Miss Abbie H. Hutchinson was the teacher of the Summer Term, and Mr. Frank B. Lowell of the Winter Term. Both teachers kept good schools and profitable. There are some very promising scholars in this District, and we are pleased to see that the inhabitants are disposed to give them a good chance.

DISTRICT NO. 9.

Wadleigh Goodhue, Prudential Committee. The Summer School of ten scholars was under the care of Miss Lucy J. Burleigh, who sustained her former good reputation as a teacher, and advanced her scholars very much.

The Winter Term was taught by Miss Julia A. Flanders—a very fine scholar, but had not quite sternness enough for the good of roguish pupils; while some of her scholars showed commendable improvement, others were sadly deficient. The reading and arithmetic classes appeared especially well. In the summer the scholars were remarkable for punctuality in attendance, but not so remarkable for it in the winter. Tardiness is an evil which may and ought to be remedied.

DISTRICT NO. 10.

Benjamin P. Niehols, Prudential Committee. This is one of the most promising schools we have visited. It is indeed pleasing to see so much laudable ambition as is manifested in this small school. For this state of things, much credit is due to Miss Lucy M. Codman and Miss Lizzie R. Morgan, who have been the instructors the past year. May they always succeed as well.

DISTRICT NO. 11.

J. Q. Perley, Prudential Committee. This school commenced May 30th, under the instruction of Miss Lizzie R. Morgan. It opened well, but by reason of the sickness of the teacher, who was twice compelled to close the school, very little was accomplished during the summer. We recommend immediate attention to the ventilating arrangements of the school house. As it is, the health of both teachers and scholars are endangered.

The Winter Term was taught by Miss Lizzie B. Burleigh. With the exception of a few unruly boys, this teacher was beloved by all her pupils, and she was only disliked by any because they were compelled to obey orders. The Committee was called to dismiss the teacher for cruelty, but found that the boys of the complainant needed dismissing more than did the teacher. The boys were allowed to remain in the school on condition of obedience to regulations. We were sorry not to receive her register.

DISTRICT NO. 12.

Byron Plummer, Prudential Committee. The Summer Term was taught by Miss Loraine E. Wilson. The school is very backward, but the teacher was energetic and succeeded tolerably well. The winter term was taught by Miss Lucy J. Burleigh. She maintained her previous good reputation as a teacher, but her register has not been received.

DISTRICT NO. 13.

C. W. Morse, Prudential Committee. There are only six scholars in this District, and they were taught by Miss Kate A. Braddish. The Committee did not visit this school but once, on account of sickness. The teacher has made no report to the Committee.

DISTRICT NO. 14.

W. L. Williams, Prudential Committee. Miss Samantha R. Kennee had charge of both Summer and Winter Terms. She kept a good school. The improvement made by the scholars during the winter term was especially noticeable by all concerned.

DISTRICT NO. 15.

John Stevens, Prudential Committee. Augusta A. Merrill, Teacher. She was well qualified, and the school appeared to be well conducted. Not being informed of the close of the first term, nor of the beginning or end of the second, the Committee visited the school but once.

DISTRICT NO. 16.

Abner Cilley, Prudential Committee. Josie Temple, Teacher. The teacher was ambitious, and conducted the school in a manner honorable to herself and profitable to the scholars.

DISTRICT NO. 17.

John Kimball, Prudential Committee. This school was taught both Summer and Winter by Miss Sarah R. Lillis. She succeeded very well in the summer, but not quite so well as we could desire in the winter. There appeared a great want of ambition in the winter school. A number of scholars left before the close of the term, for one reason and another, which had an injurious influence upon those who remained.

DISTRICT NO. 18.

William G. Somers, Prudential Committee. The misfortunes of the last winter school were in a measure made up by the diligence of the teachers this year. Miss Satira S. Jones took the Summer school and inspired the scholars with a desire to learn. The improvement of the smaller classes was very clear. The order of this school was in excellent contrast with the one preceding. The teacher says in her register: "In regard to the behavior of the scholars, I would say that it was very good. Their treatment of me was kind and respectful. The school is very pleasant, and can easily be governed by kindness and love." May the scholars of this District be always worthy of such a report.

The Winter School, taught by Miss Lizzie A. Tyler, was not behind that of the Summer in many particulars. Those scholars who came at the commencement of the term, and were punctual in their attendance, showed very commendable improvement, and were generally prompt in their answers; but those who came a month after school had commenced, showed the effect of it in the examination. We think the teacher is not chargeable with the deficiencies which appeared. She acted well her part. There are too great a variety of text books of the same grade, which evil we hope will be remedied before the opening of another term.

We wish the effort which was made by some in the District to repair the school house, had been successful. We think if the subject was considered from an unselfish stand-point, there would be no objection to repairs. Repairs are certainly needed.

DISTRICT NO. 19.

H. K. Farnum, Prudential Committee. The first term of this school commenced May 30th, and continued five weeks; there was then a vacation of six weeks. August 22d the school was opened again and continued seven weeks.

Miss Sarah A. Temple taught both terms. In her register she remarks: "Those who attended regularly made good improvement, and I think the others might have done equally well if they had tried as hard." The few that were present when we visited the school appeared well. Death has made sad inroads on the members of this school within two years.

DISTRICT NO. 20.

Clark Flanders, Prudential Committee. Ellen M. Rogers was the teacher of the first term. She was very modest and unassuming, but faithful and diligent, and succeeded very well. The Winter Term was taught by J. W. Dearborn, and was declared to be satisfactory by the Prudential Committee.

DISTRICT NO. 21.

Stephen Peasley, Prudential Committee. Miss Josie S. Chase taught both terms. Her government was good, and she gave general satisfaction.

There are some suggestions which the Committee wish to make: First, That as very few of the registers are properly kept, and several have not been returned, it should be adopted as an invariable rule that no teacher shall be paid until they present a certificate from the Superintending Committee, that the register is returned and properly filled out. We would call the attention of Prudential Committees to the law on this subject, which exposes them to a penalty if its provisions are violated. Second, We recommend the town to adopt the Act of the Legislature in regard to the change of school books. If we have laws they should be obeyed.

Respectfully submitted,

CHAS. U. DUNNING,
REUBEN DEARBORN.
